

The Inter-University Bridge Festival was hosted again by Warwick University Bridge Club during the weekend of the 5th and 6th of February. This followed from the successful revival of the event last year. In line with tradition there were various spot prizes, such as the 1100 hat for going -1100 exactly, the Precision prize for 1 Club making exactly and the Gerber prize for making 4 Clubs exactly. The prizes were graciously sponsored by Antony Edwards, 2006 President of the Warwick University Bridge Club.

Players from Imperial College, London School of Economics, Universities of Southampton and Warwick enjoyed a weekend of bridge. Regrettably, University of Bristol had to withdraw their team the day before the tournament due to unforeseen circumstances. We ran a barometer pairs event on the Saturday and this was won by Ankush Khandelwal and Shen Ting Ang from Warwick University. Second place went to Timothy Wilson and Kok Hong Ng from Imperial College. Cody Zupnick & Jonathan Liu from LSE came in third.

The teams event on Sunday saw Warwick A leading for most part of the day and winning with 90 VPs. Second place was hotly contested, with three teams being in contention going into the last round. LSE A and Southampton A both finished with 66 VPs and a tie was awarded as both teams had a draw in their head-to-head match!

The Warwick University Bridge Club would like to express their thanks to:
Darren Evetts (Chairman, Warwickshire Contract Bridge Association) for giving his time to help direct the event, as well as sponsoring cash prizes for the weekend.
West Midlands Bridge Club for loaning Bridgemates and duplicated boards for the running of the tournament.
David Jones (President, Coventry and North Warwickshire Bridge Club) for the loan of table cloths and bidding boxes.
And last but not least, everyone who turned up and contributed to a fun and enjoyable weekend of bridge.
