THE BRIGHT LEAF ALERT

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF UNIT 191

AUGUST 2016

Bright Leaf Summer Sectional July 7-10, 2016

Good Bridge, Good Fellowship, Good Fun, Good Food

Your Tournament Co-Chairs want to thank you for all the volunteer work provided: money and donations of food, and for the high attendance at this most recent Unit 191 Bright Leaf Summer Sectional. We particularly want to thank our Hospitality Helper, Kelly Harville, and the Board Members who formed the Hospitality Committee: Joyce Jenzano, Diane Saulsberry, Linda Harris and Jackie Marks. Our Partnership Co-Chairs, Blanche Tremblay and Gale Meyer did a great job of matching people up. Judy Cosler kindly filled in on Sunday morning to match up the last of the Swiss Pairs.

Chris and Tammy Moll deserve special thanks. They were available and made sure that every small facility detail was looked after.

Your food donations were welcome and plentiful. We ordered pizza lunch on Friday but food donations from Unit Members were so appetizing and satisfying that we did not sell much pizza. What we did not sell, we were able to share with the staff at the fire station next door.

You can see our prize winners at http://www.unit191bridge.org/Documents/Memories/ Albums/2016BLSummerSectional/PrizeWinnersxx.pdf and our picture gallery at http://www.unit191bridge.org/Documents/Memories/Albums/2016BLSummerSectional/SectionalAlbum/index.html.

HENRY MEGUID FINALIST FOR TEACHER OF THE YEAR

There were 62 teachers nominated to be teacher of the year by the American Bridge Teachers' Association. The teaching video submitted by Henry was chosen to be on the ABTA website as a model lesson for other teachers. Henry was one of eight finalists for the award and was honored to be nominated by his students.

The winner was Leslie Shaffer, a twentyyear veteran, past president of the ABTA and columnist for the ACBL Bulletin.

CONGRATULATIONS HENRY!

A huge thank you to Ed Fuller and Linda Brezin and their committee for chairing the recent tournament! And another thank you to all the members who so generously donated money and food for the tournament. It would not be possible to have a tournament without the support of so many dedicated volunteers. Thank you—thank you!

Congratulations to Mary Vickers, the winner of the Hugo Germino Award for attaining the highest average in the pairs game playing with two different partners!

NEWEST LIFE MASTERS

Our unit has four new life masters this month—Linda Owen, Bonnie Ellen Cox, Ian Cloudsdale, and Stirling Haig. Please read about Linda Owen and Stirling Haig, and I will include the stories of the others as I receive them.

LINDA OWEN

I am fortunate to play in a very supportive bridge community. Had I not participated in the mentoring program offered by Unit 191, I am not certain I would have reached the rank of Life Master. Thank you to my mentors whose instruction was invaluable, to a number of skillful, tolerant partners, and even to many opponents who, when asked, graciously offered suggestions and even gave an occasional gift.

I especially want to thank Larry Honeywell for believing in me and for putting together a strong team that, at the Raleigh regional, helped me to earn quite a few more gold points than I needed to reach the status of Life Master. It was an occasion of unrestrained joy!

I am "hooked" on bridge! For as many years as possible, I look forward to exploring the infinite complexities of this fascinating and challenging game.

Stirling Haig

Life Master

I learned to play bridge as a teenager from my mother, who was an avid social bridge player, and I continued to play social or "party" bridge through college and beyond.

It was not until quite a few years later, after my retirement from UNC-CH, that I was introduced to duplicate bridge by a tennis partner who happened to be Jeff Boak. What an introduction! I was hooked, and soon was attending classes taught by Jo Anne Vansuch, and then more lessons and games supervised by Harrison Brooke. I learned 2/1 from Glenn Marek, another fine teacher. My first regular partner was Sally Shook, and later Doris Elkin and I formed a partnership.

Thanks to our unit's mentor program, I played under the tutelage of Betty Whyte, Maggie Lindquist, Paul Kobrin, and Ken Dye. I thank them all for their patience; I am particularly indebted to Ken.

Later, as a board member, I was charged with recruiting leading unit players to offer seminars. Kay Joyce taught "Counting on Defense," "Counting Tricks and Points," and "Cuebidding"; Larry Honeywell taught "Defense" (so popular that he had to offer it a second time); and Harrison's "Brush up your Bidding," all at the Triangle Bridge Club. Today our members enjoy Henry Meguid's half-hour lessons at the Bridge Academy and other lessons that are on offer at TBC.

I can't name everyone in the unit whom I've played with over the years, but not a few of them have helped me acquire the combination and number of points needed to reach Life Master. My thanks to all of them. I generally don't like to play in tournaments, but of course I had to travel to regional tournaments in Wilmington, Hilton Head, and Raleigh to win those gold points we crave. This year the same message on the back cover of successive ACBL Bridge Bulletins began to gnaw at me: "Next rank is Life Master— You need 2.04 gold points." OK, time to go for it in the Raleigh Regional in May.

Doris and I started off in the Gold Rush—no points for us. But we had had the wisdom to recruit partners for the Knockouts: Joyce Jenzano and Gary Zadjeika. Our team didn't do too well in the first round, but after the second we were sure to win some gold--but only 1.98, not enough to push me over the top. I went to bed that night somewhat uneasy. We had to win early the next day for me to make LM.

And we did win just enough: 2.65. It's been a long journey for the octogenarian that I am. Thanks, partners and teammates!

Sidney Lenz's 1928 Double Dummy Hand

This, one of the most famous of all double dummy problems, was composed by Sidney Lenz in 1928.

FOURTH SUIT FORCING TO GAME REDUX

By Randy Joyce

Playing in the Thursday afternoon game @ TBC, I encountered a hand for this article. My partner and I were not the bidders, but since I have received so much positive feedback about my article last month on Fourth Suit Forcing, I wanted to see if people were really putting it to use.

The East hand was Kx, AKQTxx, QJxx, x, and partner opened 1 Diamond. East responded 1 Heart and heard partner bid 1 Spade.

What better time to use 4SF (to game) than now! If East had bid 2 Clubs, partner would have alerted and announced that this was just a game force and said nothing about clubs.

Partner would have bid 2NT, and East would use their mental checklist of responses over 4SF:

#1 bid 2 Hearts with 3 trumps #2 bid NT with a stopper in the 4th suit #3 bid anything else

So, West/Partner has #2 : a club stopper. Since the auction is at 2C, opener would bid 2NT to show the club stopper, with Kxxx.

What now you ask? East could have bid 3 Hearts showing a great suit and still game forcing. How do we know that it's a great suit? Opener denied holding a 3-card fit, so East's hearts must be pretty good, (able to play opposite 1 or 2 small, if necessary.

Partner repeats their preference for NT, with a 3NT bid. East can assume that partner has 0 or 1 heart. How so? Partner would raise with 2 Hearts since, he had denied 3 over the 2C bid.

East could just pass, but there might still be bigger fish to be fried. East should now bid 4 Diamonds. This is delayed support for opener's original suit. It is absolutely FORCING. Once you bid 2 Clubs, you established a game force. This must show 4 Diamonds since partner has never rebid their suit. If West has a hand that is ill suited to higher level contracts, he can just punt with a 4 Heart bid.

What has East done on this hand?

*shown a great suit (6+ cards)

*shown points for at least game; with FSF, you tell partner to that your side is dealing from a position of strength: "don't be afraid."

*you have gone slowly showing a better hand than if you had jumped at any point; (Always remember, IF YOU ARE IN A GAME FORCING SITUATION, THE LESS YOU BID THE MORE YOU HAVE.)

*shown delayed 4-card support for opener's original suit

What will Opener do? Partner finally shows some life and cuebids 4 Spades. He must have liked your 4 Diamond bid. You can now bid 4NT Key Card Blackwood since you have established a suit. Partner responds 5 Diamonds (0-3 KC). That would be the Ace of Spades and either the A or K of Diamonds (or both) or the A of Clubs. East can confidently bid 6 Diamonds. Partner's hand was Axxx, x, AKxx, Kxxx! Cold slam bid and made!!

The really interesting part of this hand for me was to look at the scores later on. Three pairs bid slam, but none of them were in Diamonds. They were all in 6 Hearts, which depended on 3-3 trumps or Jx dropping. Hearts were duly 3-3 so their slam scored 11 MP out of 12. If someone had bid the cold 6 Diamonds, they would have scored 9 MP. This is a 75% board with NO DOWNSIDE, no risk.

FSF can definitely improve your scores and your slam bidding. As an experienced player, I see so many fellow competitors trying to learn oodles of conventions, but this one is really worth the effort.

HUMOR AT THE BRIDGE TABLE

Maggie Lindquist reported this story from a game in which she recently directed.

"At a game where a person's partner could not play, I filled in as his partner. Picking up a hand with 20 points, I put down the STOP card and bid 2 NT. LHO passed, partner passed, and RHO passed. Partner's hand came down with 7 points (2kings and a jack). I asked my partner if he knew how many points a 2 NT bid meant. He said, "But you used the stop card'. I paused a moment, then asked him what he thought the stop card meant, and his reply, "I thought it meant for me not to bid'.

Humorous—yes, if you're the opponents. Lesson—yes, if you're declarer. That's how we all learn and continue to enjoy the game.

Solution to Sidney Lenz's 1928 Double Dummy Hand

Win ♣Q with ♣A, pitching a diamond. Lead ♣K.

If East ruffs, over ruff. Cash two diamonds; finesse heart; cash ♠A; ruffing finesse with ♠Q; ruff back to hand; cash high hearts and spades.

If East pitches as diamond, pitch a low spade. Finesse a heart with ♥J or ♥T; lead a diamond to dummy; finesse another heart. Cash top hearts pitching clubs in dummy, leaving ♠ A Q J and ♦ 9 in your hand. On the last heart West is squeezed having to protect spades, diamonds, and clubs. If West protects spades and diamonds, lead the ♦9 to the ♦K, and squeeze West again in spades and diamonds with the remaining club.

If East pitches a spade, ruff low. Cash ♠A; ruffing finesse with ♠Q. Finesse a heart back to hand. Cash remaining spades. Lead a diamond to dummy; and return a club, East pitching a diamond. Ruff low and return to dummy with another high diamond. On the return of a club or a diamond, East's ♥ Q 6 are trapped by your ♥ K 7.

NOTE: Any lead except a club or the ♠K sets the contract.

Thanks to Ed Fuller for posing the problem and the solution.

We want to thank everyone who has attended and supported our Durham-Chapel Hill Bridge Club Game during its first year. Ever since we began to run our first two games at Bob Boggs' old Bridge Center 14 years ago, we have always tried to run congenial games in a desirable location for folks of all levels of play but especially for novice and intermediate players. The Senior Center was also a wonderful partner for over five years but we outgrew the space so we were overjoyed when Henry told us of his dreams for The Bridge Academy and asked if we had an interest in joining him. The past year has been super. It has allowed us to grow our game by an average of 3 tables in a First Class venue while also providing better yummies and a game that most folks enjoy playing a few hours on Friday afternoons. Again thank you for your continued support to DCBC as well as The Bridge Academy during this past year and we look forward to 2017.
