

My Involvement with bridge was inspired by my grandson Reese, who began playing at age 13 and chosen "King of Bridge 2018". When he asked me why he plays with everyone else's grandmother but not with me, I knew then that I had to learn this challenging, addicting and difficult game at a rather late point in my life. To be able to play with my grandson was a blessing that I could not afford not to pursue. After many lessons and much frustration I am completely hooked and have seen some improvement. My grandson is now in college but when he is home, I am honored to get to play with him.

I have also made many new friends through bridge and play locally as well as online. I thank the ACBL and the game of bridge for adding a new dimension to my life. I now even get to play with my granddaughter who will be a senior in high school. Thank you for the opportunity to express my feelings and hopefully there will be other grandmothers who will gain the pleasure that I have received from this great game.
