

I have the privilege of playing with some incredible partners that have made my journey through the ranks of the ACBL a real blast. My family. Yes , we are a bridge playing family. I shared not too long ago the story of my father, Robert Kirkpatrick, introducing us to bridge at a very early age. I played with my parents and my brother, Russ Kirkpatrick early on. After giving it up for several decades while life happened, I returned to the game in early 2020. I relearned with Dad online during the pandemic until his passing. My son, Griffin, had taken an interest in college and that had sparked my interest again. I started getting my brother to play again as well. Now we play as often as our busy lives will allow. So thank you Dad for teaching us. Thank you to Mom , Janice,
