

Meet Mary Peachin

Native Tucsonan Mary Peachin is a third-generation granddaughter of the pioneering Arizona Levy (as in the now defunct Arizona department store) family.

She attended Tucson schools, received a BA in Sociology from Tulane, and an MPA from the University of Arizona.

A commercial-instrument pilot, Mary has enjoyed careers in aviation, owning an art gallery, and for the past two decades she has been an adventure travel writer for national and local publications.

She has authored numerous books detailing many of her extraordinary adventures which you can find by doing a search on Amazon.

The Covid pandemic gave Mary the opportunity to learn and play bridge, an opportunity greatly appreciated with her traveling days temporarily on hold.

Spending half the year in their Vancouver, British Columbia condo, Mary and her husband of 55 years were not permitted into Canada this year as the border was closed to Americans. The Peachins have two children and two grandchildren.
