

Meet Barbara Rosenthal

Originally from Dayton, Ohio. I had a great time growing up as my extended family grew to 20+ first cousins, all going to the same schools, and with a grandmother who was an extraordinarily loving matriarch.

After attending Stephen's College in Missouri, I married and had 4 daughters. Dayton, Ohio was a great place to raise a family until the winter of 77' when the snow stayed on the ground for 3 months. It was then my family moved to Arizona.

I played on a tennis team until breaking an ankle on the court and then went to real estate school on crutches. This led to a successful real estate career in Scottsdale.

A client talked me into taking bridge lessons (I had not played since rec room bridge in college).

As you might suspect, I became addicted and when I moved to Tucson I began to teach bridge. I never was a "teacher" but found I loved teaching "the greatest game in the world".
