

Meet Jill Hurwitz

Hi All - I'm Jill Hurwitz from Highland Park, IL, and my husband and I are snowbirds in Tucson. After 3 winter visits, we bought a home here, in the foothills of Mt. Lemmon, amid absolutely beautiful scenery and wildlife! (1)

I grew up the oldest of 5 kids in Highland Park, in a very creative home. I was an English major in college (Skidmore), and then spent about 3 years in the Peace Corps, in what's now called Burkina Faso, West Africa, teaching English as a Foreign Language. I then got my master's in teaching English and French, and taught both in Chicago for several years. My longtime hobby, pottery (2) became my profession once my kids were in school, and I've been teaching ceramics for about 28 years, teaching occasional French classes as well. I also paint in oils (3: our dog, Bailey), and make jewelry. I have a website (in need of updating!) with my artwork: www.jillpotter.wix.com/jillhurwitz

When our kids were in high school, a friend offered to teach my friends and me Bridge. Several of us got "hooked" and played socially for years. I didn't play much duplicate until a few years ago. Now I'm hooked on duplicate, and have less interest in social bridge. I'm a perennial intermediate player, forever working to improve!

I've enjoyed meeting friends through Bridge, and play as much as I can. My husband, Joel, is a retired attorney, and he plays tennis here. We have a daughter in NY who produces documentary films for TV, and a son who teaches Philosophy at Loyola U in Chicago. I hope to spend more and more time in AZ, playing Bridge!
