

Meet Eric Swanson

Born in the hot bed of bridge in Nebraska, I moved all over the country growing up, following the aerospace industry.

I attended the University of Denver.

Although I played some family bridge, I did not go to my first tournament until around 1980.

My first ever points earned was by placing first in the NLM section of Denver Regional.

I have two daughters, neither of whom plays cards and two dogs – they also do not play cards.

One of my most memorable and fun bridge achievements was beating Jeff Meckstroth in a team event.

When not playing bridge, I play golf and study chess and Spanish for fun.

Added November 2020