Bulletin #7

Saturday, February 16th, 2024

Congratulations to Lissa Lowes from Parry Sound, ON who became a life master at this tournament.

Whoops, Here Come the Norwegians Again...

Anders and Boye Brogeland from Norway lead after the 1st session of the 3-session Lady Burton Pairs.

In second are Simon Cope - Richard Bowley from Great Britain and William (Tony) Watkins and Dave Blackman of Barbados are in third. Lots more bridge to play but it will be exciting at the top.

All guests of Sunbay and Barbados Beach Club are invited to attend the banquet on Saturday evening at 7pm in the Dome at Barbados Beach Club. Facing the bar, turn left and you will come to it.

Others are also invited and encouraged to attend. Cost: $55.00 USD or $110.00 Barbados per person.

Times for tomorrow, Saturday are 9:30am and 2:00pm.

North bid aggressively to a grand slam. South counts his losers after Dummy comes down and finds only one too many. He has a ♣ loser.

He eyes the long Diamond suit in dummy and thinks... "What if Diamonds divide 4-4 just this once? I could ruff Diamonds in Declarer's hand over and over again and finally the fifth Diamond in Dummy would be high. Then I could throw away my losing Club on the 13th Diamond in dummy.

Declarer will need four entries to Dummy just to set up the Diamond suit and then also a FIFT entry to Dummy in order to actually use the fifth Diamond. (We call it "enjoying" the fifth Diamond.)

The trick is to NOT pull trump just yet...ruff a ♦ at trick 2 and then get to dummy's Spade King, using this as a valuable entry. Keep returning to Dummy and ruffing Diamonds in Declarer's hand.

It is essential to watch the Defender's as they follow suit (or do not follow suit) in Diamonds. If you cannot count all the suits, be sure to always count the trump suit AND also count your “project suit”: In this case, the Diamond suit. Lo and behold, because Declarer lives right, the Diamonds behave and divide 4-4. The fifth Diamond in Dummy will now be high and on this Declarer can discard his losing ♣.

West led the king of diamonds. Declarer could count six tricks outside trumps. He saw that if he could keep his trump losers to one, he would make his contract.

Declarer observed that no matter how he played the trump suit he would almost always have at least one loser in the suit. If trumps were three-two, the ace and another trump would carry the day. So, declarer turned his attention to dealing with a four-one trump break.

With that in mind, declarer led a low trump at trick two. West played the ♥8 and dummy’s jack won the trick. Declarer returned to hand with a low club to his king to lead a second low trump. West rose with the king of trumps, dummy followed low, and East discarded a diamond.

Declarer ruffed West’s continuation of the queen of diamonds, played a low trump to dummy’s queen, led a spade to his ace and drew West’s remaining trump with the ace. This brought declarer’s trick total to seven and he claimed three more club tricks for his contract.

Note that declarer’s play in the trump suit would only lose a second trump trick if East had been dealt a singleton king or four trumps to the king and a singleton club (provided he does not take the king on the first round of trumps). Otherwise, declarer would have been able to pick up the trump suit for one loser.
