East obeyed his partner's suggestion and led his ♣J which held the trick. Declarer took the club continuation and proceeded to take his chances. A small diamond towards the queen was successful and a diamond back brought the ♦10 from West and declarer was obliged to take his ace. Four hearts tricks followed when they generously broke 3-3. A diamond from dummy allowed East to take two diamond tricks but he then had to lead away from his king of spades and so declarer had his ninth trick. Yes he was fortunate but he took advantage of his good fortune and played the right cards in the right order.

As far as I can tell from the convention card North plays a strong no-trump so I am confused as to why the opening bid was 1♣. Naturally South believed the rebid to be 12-14 and so passed and did not give the chance to his partner to demonstrate his prowess in the game contract. Ten IMPs to India.

Four Clubs was alerted but not explained—I assume it was major-orientated but I cannot see why he believed his side would have a major suit game available and North very soon showed him the errors of his ways. He lost a club, two trumps and two diamonds for 300 against a possible part-score of Four clubs.

Might South's 2♠ vulnerable might be just a trifle ambitious. In the play declarer lost two hearts, two diamonds and two trumps. He became trump bound and ended up having to lead them from his hand giving East the jack and 800. Nine more IMPs for India.

India had much the better of the third session and ended leading 112.5- 73. UAE would need a fabulous last session to recover that deficit.

Naturally North led a spade to south’s ace, the spade continuation was ruffed and trumps drawn in three rounds. West now played the ♥9 and North rose with his ace. This is the crucial moment. North has a complete count on the hand and so should be able to work out what to do. West has one heart, four diamonds and two clubs so if he exits with a heart he can sit back and await his diamond trick but what if he lazily leads a diamond. Declarer will win in hand and cash two more clubs, mercilessly squeezing North, yes you guessed it North played a diamond, another unmakeable contract makes, twelve IMPs to India

I suspect West's Double was partly born out of desperation. He knew they needed some good results if they were to have any chance of winning. Things did not go well for the defence. The club lead was won in dummy and the top two hearts cashed, noting the fall of the queen. A spade to the ace and then ace and another diamond ruffed in dummy. The jack of hearts disposed of the penultimate diamond and the last went on the king of clubs. West just made his three trump tricks, 630 to India.

Poor old North, he had a difficult bid when 2♠ came round to him and in some respects I admire the 4♠ bid but I also think South had a touch of desperation. Of course the contract was bound to fail but there is a layout whereby South has a chance; if West's hand is ♠KJ4 ♥87652 ♦82 ♣1064 then if West fails to lead a diamond the contract can be made. It was another 14 IMPs to India and by now the match was out of reach for the UAE and they eventually lost 99.5-42.

Having seen the number of sessions where the first deal is a slam perhaps encouraged West's final bid. It certainly is brave, there is no guarantee that East would hold all three aces, but it seems a fair bet. There was nothing to the play.

Just imagine if West had bid 3♥ rather than 4♠ now you are not staying out of slam and if you can impart the heart void to partner you may well reach the grand slam, but yet again this broken record of unilateral action is playing on the record player. And again we write +510.

East's problem after his initial Pass is that he is never going to get across to partner how strong he is and West's problem is that he has used up all the bidding space, perhaps some two-suited overcall might have been better. If I had had the East hand I would have risked a 1NT overcall (of course it is much easier to say that with sight of all four hands)

I was surprised at the alert for two reasons, firstly in the protective position 2NT is frequently natural and secondly if it was a Michael's cue-bid it would normally be the minors but even with North's bold interference (he is kept to his six trump tricks if the defence just lead black cards) a makeable contract was reached but unfortunately two overtricks were made. Would West be better off starting with a and then the auction might have continued with a transfer to spades followed by a splinter in hearts and then perhaps there was a chance of arriving in the grand slam. Resting in the small slam gave ten IMPs to Jordan.

North was probably transfixed by his lack of points rather than the numerous plus points he held, yet again that ninth trump rears its head and also he has two singletons, surely he worth a 4♣ cue-bid over 3NT. That would probably be enough to encourage South to bid the slam. Not bidding the slam this time gave India eleven IMPs.

I am not quite sure why South employed Blackwood if he was going to bid the grand slam even if partner had no keycards or kings, it would have saved us all time and energy if he had just bid it. Declarer was fortunate in that the diamonds were 3-3, otherwise the contract would have failed.

What did the 2NT bid promise, especially after the 3♠ continuation, unfortunately the excellent and complete convention card has one small omission of this auction. But again South has taken unilateral action about not investigating further. Yes I know he is close to minimum in points but that ninth (and possibly tenth) trump combined with excellent controls warrant a 4♦ bid over 3♠, now whether North can do more is open to question, but he certainly cannot over a signoff of 4♠.

There is no version of Bergen I know where there is a response of 2NT. Examining the convention card I believe it means game forcing with four spades. This time it was North who took unilateral action to the detriment of his team. After the 3♥ bid the auction could well have taken the following route 4♣-4♦-4♠-5♥-6♠ and that would have been a substantial gain rather than a push.

A continuing theme throughout this article seems to unilateral closing down of the auction as per North here. South has forced you to the five-level, why not show your club control—you are not minimum for your redouble, have some faith in partner. Another board where you write down +710. Yes I know the slam is not 100% but it is not bad odds especially as any minor suit lead will give you the contract.

Unfortunately the 3♣ was not explained. Surely with the South hand you are going to game after the initial positive response. I am sure that the 3♣ bid must have some positive connotation otherwise he would bid 3♥. How can South not make further effort(s) with such a hand.

What does it cost South to show his diamond control over 3NT, it must be the ace as you would not show a king when a singleton is known to be opposite. With that information North can virtually underwrite the five-level and can then check to see whether the small slam is viable. Bridge is a partnership game, if you continually make unilateral decisions, you are excluding partner and so you are not functioning as a team. On this board it gave thirteen IMPs to India. After the three sessions India was in the lead 95-50.

The same dilemma faced this declarer but he chose to rise with the ♣K and was rewarded 17 IMPs for Pakistan.

At the end of the first three session of the semi-final UAE had a slender lead of 97.5-85 over UAE.
