

Sim pairs Monday 27/10/25

The commentary assumes a weak notrump, 4 card suits and 3 weak twos. Good luck.

Will East bid 4 ♠? We hope not, while 4 ♠ can make double dummy it needs to get a lot right. Indeed GIB (double dummy analyser) says it can go 2 off). Will North lead a diamond, their singleton heart (best) or a club. We shall see.

1. Looks like a perfectly good weak two to me.

We do not see anyone getting to the lucky 4 ♥ after this start.

The interesting point to this hand is that South must bid smoothly and not think for an age before passing thus giving their partner illegal information.

West should worry a little about the redouble which should be to play because South might hold 7 solid hearts and an Ace.

Where do North/South go after this start? Wherever it is it must be doubled.

If you play red suit transfers you can bid 2 NT which North will probably pass. However, if you play 4 suit transfers you have to go through Stayman here which will help the defence because West will know that they have to keep 4 spades.

Will East open? Many won't on a 4-4-4-1 12 count, but if they don't the spade fit is easy to find but if East opens 1 ♣ this auction shown makes it awkward, is 1 ♠ fourth suit forcing?. However, a good agreement is that a raise of the fourth suit shows 4 cards in the suit. With this agreement the hand is easy.

1. Yes you should raise with 3+ cards.

East should think as follows. We have 9 or more hearts (call it 9), it seems that they have 9 or more spades. Total no of tricks) TNT = 18. If they can make 3 ♠ we will go at least 1 off in 4 ♥ - too many and therefore pass.

How this will go depends on your style. For some 3♥ is non forcing and you have to go through 2NT (enquiry) and then bid hearts.

If 3♥ is forcing for you is Q x good enough to raise?

This hand shows why the double dummy analysis (D.D.A) must be used carefully. 7NT and 7♠ make because the spade Queen is doubleton and while 6♥ or 6♠ are good contracts, the grand slam is awful.

1. If you play weak jump shift (the modern idiot, sorry idiom) this hand is easy. 2 ♠ shows 9-11 and a 6 card suit.

East can safely limit raise to 3 and West bids the game.
Easy game, bridge.

Will North bid 1 NT or make the truly awful takeout double? We shall see, or maybe we won't as most clubs will not play 32 boards.

Note that we have not used an complicated bidding at all here. Keep It Simple Stupid.

We hope that you enjoyed this, see you soon.
