

Thelma Frayer

Thelma was the co-founder of Frankston Bridge Club and spent many years fundraising to buy premises for the club, along with Kath Annear and Maud Stevens.

Inflation and increased property prices thwarted that endeavour although thanks to them the club's bank account is still very healthy.

Lessons were conducted by Yvonne Millman and Thelma followed up with supervised classes at her home. She played bridge until she was 93 and remained an enthusiastic member.

Thelma's career included both teaching and nursing and, in her seventies, worked at TAB. She met her husband Phil at the school where she worked. They had one son who provided her with the light of her life, her two grandsons.

In later years Thelma spent the winter months in Noosa, playing bridge with her friends Liz and Dave Stuart.

A day at bridge when there were no slams and many part scores were affectionately called "A Thelma Day" referring to her perseverance and patience.

A beautiful lady who was loved and respected at Frankston Bridge Club.
